Atlanta, GA – Today, the Georgia Association of Emergency Medical Services announced the launch of a new association website, designed to further distribute the Association's mission. The new website will offer, among other things, a press center, a legislative action center, online conference registration, and an online job exchange center.

"In today's world, it's almost impossible to operate effectively as an advocacy and education organization without an up to date, dynamic website to communicate your messages to the public," said Courtney Terwilliger, Chairman of GAEMS. "Recently, our organization has experienced a renewed focus on creative ways to educate our members and communicate the importance of our issues. Our website is one of the most important parts of that vision."

Senator John Douglas (R – Social Circle) commented, "The service that EMTs and paramedics in the State of Georgia provide is indispensable to the safety of the public. Their dedication to pre-hospital care saves lives in our state everyday."

The Georgia Association of EMS represents 14,000 EMTs and paramedics in Georgia's emergency medical services industry, and provides educational services and provider benefits to those operatives. GAEMS is also strongly active in the political and public policy arena, educating legislators and decision makers about the EMS industry and advocating for sound public policy governing the industry.
